1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 The most succinct response to plaintiffs' clamor about their purported loss of rights is the 3 adage: You can't lose what you never had. The allure that plaintiffs' siren song may have held 4 at the demurrer stage is quickly dispelled by the evidence of Pacifica Foundation's operations, 5 which indisputably shows that LAB members have never had the right to vote on the election of 6 directors of Pacifica or on amendments to Pacifica's Bylaws. Regardless of whatever power 7 plaintiff Sherry Gendelman may have thought she had, in fact, every Director of Pacifica from 8 1948 to date has been elected, not by LAB members but by the Board of Directors. Substantial 9 evidence--including the sworn testimony by the former long-time chair of Pacifica's Board of 10 Directors as well as the minutes from meetings of Pacifica's Board--conclusively shows that the 11 Bylaw amendments complained of by plaintiffs did not take away any right from LAB members, 12 because they had no right to elect Board members to begin with.

13 The ultimate irony of this case is the fact that the actions taken by the Pacifica Board that 14 plaintiffs complain of, were taken by a Board that was composed of precisely the ratio of LAB-15 nominated directors to at-large directors that plaintiffs now seek to impose. The evidence shows 16 that when the Board took action in September 1997 and February 1999, it consisted primarily of 17 directors who had been originally nominated by LABs. Thus, the LABs effectively had the 18 representation on the Board plaintiffs wanted--yet the now-disputed amendments were adopted 19 by unanimous vote of LAB nominated Board members. Unhappy with the result, it is plaintiffs 20 who are now attempting to "pack the Board."

21 That this lawsuit is nothing more than a thinly-veiled attempt to gain control of the Three 22 Hundred Million Dollar public interest enterprise is reflected in the injunctive relief sought by 23 plaintiffs.<sup>1</sup> Although the basic purpose of an injunction is to maintain the status quo until the 24 action can be determined on its merits, plaintiffs seek to upend the status quo by requesting an 25 order that would place their hand-picked allies on Pacifica's Board of Directors. Plaintiffs are

26 <sup>1</sup> Even local supporters of Pacifica's radio stations have begun disavowing and distancing 27 themselves from the tactics of the small but vocal faction leading the attack on Pacifica, 28 including one of the plaintiffs herein, David Adelson. See Ex. T to the Declaration of Lynn Chadwick ("Chadwick Decl.") filed herewith.

1 asking this Court to use its authority to reconstitute the Board to plaintiffs' liking.

2 The motion should be denied, because plaintiffs have not and cannot establish the 3 requisite elements for injunctive relief. The primary "support" for plaintiffs' motion is the 4 wholly conclusory, incompetent and materially inaccurate Declaration of Sherry Gendelman, a 5 four-year veteran of KPFA's Local Advisory Board. Plaintiffs cannot show they are reasonably 6 likely to prevail, because the evidence demonstrates they are not members of Pacifica, they have 7 never had the right to elect directors to Pacifica's Board, and they have never had the right to 8 vote on amendments to Pacifica's Bylaws. Further, plaintiffs will not prevail on their claim that 9 Pacifica is somehow wrongfully "packing the Board" with at-large directors and that a certain 10 proportion of LAB-nominated and at-large directors must be maintained, because there has never 11 been any proportion required by the Articles or Bylaws, the Bylaws explicitly delegate all such 12 determinations to the Board, and historically there has been no particular proportion.

13 Plaintiffs have also failed to establish any harm they will suffer if the injunction does not 14 issue. Plaintiffs have offered no evidence of any harm to them that would result if the injunction 15 is denied. Even if plaintiffs had introduced evidence of harm, as discussed below, if the 16 injunction issues, Pacifica would suffer far more serious harm.

17 In sum, since plaintiffs have never held or exercised the powers they seek here, the status 18 quo is to leave the situation intact, without, in essence, letting the fox into the chicken coop.
19 Plaintiffs' Motion for Preliminary Injunction should be denied.

20 II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

21 The Pacifica Foundation ("Pacifica") is a California non-profit public benefit corporation 22 with its principal place of business in Los Angeles, California, and its National Headquarters in 23 Washington, D.C. Declaration of Mary Frances Berry ("Berry Decl."), ¶3, filed herewith.
24 Pursuant to a license from the Federal Communications Commission ("FCC"), Pacifica currently 25 owns and operates six noncommercial, educational radio stations across the Country. Id.
26 Pacifica must comply with all FCC regulations, which prohibit a licensee from directly or 27 indirectly transferring control to any person absent approval of the FCC. Declaration of John 28 Crigler ("Crigler Decl."), ¶13. Any such transfer without FCC approval would subject Pacifica

1 to monetary penalties and other sanctions. Id.

2 Direct testimony by Jack O'Dell, who served as the Chair of the Board for nearly 20 3 years, and by long-time members of Pacifica's Board, as well as the corporate minutes and 4 records for over the past 20 years, show that Local Advisory Board members have never had the 5 right to elect directors to the Board or to vote on amendments to Pacifica's Bylaws. Pacifica has 6 never had any "members" as defined by California Corporations Code §5056, other than the 7 Pacifica Board members themselves. Berry Decl., ¶4.

8 Prior to 1984, the Board both nominated and elected all Board members. Declaration of 9 Jack O'Dell ("O'Dell Decl."), filed herewith, ¶4. In 1984, the Board amended Article Three, 10 Section 2 to allow a station board to nominate Board members. After that amendment, in order 11 to be elected, such local nominees needed only the majority vote of existing Board members, 12 while "at-large" members needed a 2/3rds vote of the existing Board. Id. at ¶¶6 and 7. In 1991, 13 this Bylaw was amended to require at least one such local nominee to be a person of color. Id. at 14 ¶3. At no time from 1984 to 1997, when Article Three was again amended, did the Board of 15 Directors interpret the Bylaw to mean that the LABs had the power to elect a director. Id. at ¶7.
16 Rather, at all times, only directors then serving on the Board could vote to elect directors to the 17 Board. Id. at ¶3; see also, Declaration of Ambrose I. Lane ("Lane Decl."), ¶2. At no time has 18 any director ever been seated on the Board without the affirmative vote of the Board. Id. at ¶¶10, 19 12. Berry Decl., ¶6.

20 At the time the Bylaws were amended in September 1997 and February 1999--i.e., the 21 amendments plaintiffs challenge in this suit--the majority of the Board members who voted for 22 the amendments were either also members of LABs or had been originally nominated to the 23 Board by an LAB. Declaration of Frank Millspaugh ("Millspaugh Decl."), ¶6. In September of 24 1997, at a properly noticed and regularly scheduled meeting of the Pacifica Board, Article Three 25 was again amended.<sup>2</sup> The only material change was to alter the percentage of votes required for 26 _____

27 <sup>2</sup> The notice provided notice of proposed language changes, which were debated, 28 amended and unanimously approved at the Board meeting. Berry Decl., ¶12. No director objected to the form of notice given. Id.

1 election to the Board. All nominees thereafter must obtain the votes of a majority of those seated 2 in a quorum, as opposed to a majority of all directors for LAB nominees and a 2/3<sup>rds</sup> majority of 3 all directors for at-large nominees. Id. at ¶3; Berry Decl., Ex. L, p. 7. These amendments were 4 also intended to clarify the language of the 1988 version of the Bylaws, so that it could not even 5 be argued that LABs actually controlled the election of any directors. Even though the 6 amendments were passed in September 1997, no one objected to the amendments or otherwise 7 questioned who held the power to elect directors for nearly two years.<sup>3</sup> Then came the June 14, 8 1999 letter to Pacifica from plaintiffs' counsel, Dan Siegel.

9         Significantly, although plaintiffs' counsel, Mr. Siegel, attended the September 1997 10 Board meeting, neither he nor his clients expressed any objection to the Bylaws amendment. In 11 fact, Mr. Siegel, on behalf of his clients, spoke at the 1997 Board meeting and "applauded" 12 Pacifica's 1997 Bylaw amendments and recognized the weakness of the LABs. Berry Decl., ¶6; 13 Exhibit K, pp. 62-63; Declaration of Daniel Rapaport ("Rapaport Decl."), ¶¶4-6, filed herewith.
14 Through his comments, Mr. Siegel also tacitly acknowledged that only Pacifica's directors voted 15 on the election of directors. Even a week later, Mr. Siegel was describing the meeting as "very 16 positive." Id., Ex. Q.

17         On March 1, 1998, the Board of Directors issued its written policy clarifying the role of 18 the LABs. Chadwick Decl., ¶2, Ex. S thereto. The policy demonstrates that the universal 19 understanding before the February 1999 meeting was that the LABs "serve under the direction 20 and guidance of the Pacifica National Governing Board." Ex. S, page 1. The Pacifica Board 21 Chair and Executive Committee have "the authority to institute reorganization or reconstitution 22 of the LAB." Id. Exhibit S specifies the powers and responsibilities of the LABs.
23 Conspicuously absent is the power to elect directors. Rather, "No actions may be taken by the 24 LAB that would preempt, in whole or in part, the authority or responsibility of the Governing 25 Board." Id. at p. 2. The LAB's right to nominate potential members was, however, confirmed.
26 See Ex. S to Chadwick Decl., page 4.

27 <sup>3</sup> Nor had any LAB member asserted or even suggested that they had a vested right to 28 elect any director at any time before the 1997 amendments of Article Three.

1 In 1998, Pacifica was advised by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting that the 2 Communications Act requires CPB grantees to have two separate and distinct boards – a 3 governing board and a community advisory board. See, Ex. M to Crigler Decl., ¶5. Funding 4 from CPB, which comprises a substantial percentage of Pacifica’s budget, was in jeopardy since 5 some Board directors had not formally resigned as LAB members after election to the Board.
6 Crigler Decl., ¶¶4, 5.

7 In order to eliminate the risk of losing CPB funding, in 1999 the Board decided it was in 8 the best interests of Pacifica to assure compliance with CPB requirements by simply amending 9 the Bylaws to prohibit anyone serving as a director of the Board from simultaneously serving on 10 an LAB board. Id. at ¶¶6, 7. After adopting this amendment, those Directors who had also been 11 serving on LABs each chose to resign from their respective LABs and remain on Pacifica’s 12 Board. Crigler Decl., ¶6.

13 For all of plaintiffs’ hyperbole, the Board made minimal changes to the election process 14 at its February 1999 meeting. The changes adopted in no way eliminated or diminished the right 15 of LABs to nominate. Berry Decl., ¶9. The 1999 amendment merely created a unified procedure 16 for how those nominations would be handled. All nominations are to be forwarded to the 17 Board’s Governance and Structure Committee where they are prescreened for the Board. Id.
18 See Ex. H, Footnote to Section 2. When the prescreening is complete, the Committee is to send 19 the nominations to the Board for consideration and vote. The Committee has no power to 20 exclude LAB nominees from presentation to the Board. Berry Decl., ¶9. This revised procedure 21 in no way alters the LABs’ right to nominate potential directors.

22 Nor have LAB members wrongfully been deprived of the right to vote on the size of the 23 Board. The Bylaws have been crystal clear since 1961 that “There shall be such number of 24 directors as the Governing Board shall from time to time decide.” Article Three, Section 1, C.
25 No LAB member has ever voted on such matters. O’Dell Decl., ¶13. The size and composition 26 of the Board has varied from year to year at the discretion of the Board. Acosta Decl., ¶¶7, 8.
27 However, the very Board plaintiffs complain of as having wrongfully adopted the disputed 28 amendments was composed of a majority of directors who had been nominated by LABs.

1     III.   LEGAL ARGUMENT

2             The purpose of a preliminary injunction is to preserve the status quo until a final 3     determination of the merits following a trial. Continental Baking Co. v. Katz (1968) 68 Cal.2d 4     512, 528. See also, Plaintiffs' Memo, p.3, 14-5. In determining whether to grant an injunction, a 5     court must consider two factors: "the likelihood that the plaintiff will prevail on the merits at 6     trial," and the "interim harm that the plaintiff is likely to sustain if the injunction were denied as 7     compared to the harm that the defendant is likely to suffer if the preliminary injunction were 8     issued." IT Corp. v. County of Imperial (1983) 35 Cal.3d 63, 69-70. The court must deny a 9     request for preliminary injunction unless there is "a reasonable probability that plaintiff will be 10    successful in the assertion of his rights." Continental Baking Co. v. Katz, supra, 68 Cal.2d at 11    528. Not only are plaintiffs seeking to alter the status quo by seeking a mandatory injunction, 12    they have failed to demonstrate, by competent evidence, that they will prevail on the merits or 13    that they will suffer harm greater than that, which will befall Pacifica.

14             A.   Plaintiffs' Showing Does Not Remotely Approach The Standards Required
15             For Injunctive Relief.

16             1.   Plaintiffs Seek To Alter The Status Quo By Requesting Injunctive 17             Relief That Will Reconstitute Pacifica's Board.

18             It is plaintiffs, not defendants, who seek to alter the status quo. The Declarations of those 19     who have served on the Board as early as 1977, together with the Exhibits appended thereto 20     overwhelmingly prove that the status quo has been that the Board of Directors always and 21     exclusively elected new directors. O'Dell Decl., ¶¶7, 8; Lane Decl., ¶2; Millspaugh Decl., ¶2; 22     Berry Decl., ¶5, 6. This power was never transferred, shared or delegated to anyone, including 23     the LABs and LAB members. Plaintiffs have not provided a scintilla of admissible evidence to 24     the contrary. The relief sought by plaintiffs, which includes placing plaintiffs' allies on the 25     Board, would alter the processes which have been in place for over 50 years. Plaintiffs fall far 26     short of their burden of proof, and the motion should be denied.

1                   2.     Plaintiffs Have Not And Cannot Show That They Will Prevail on the 2                   Merits.

3                   a.     Plaintiffs Will Not Prevail On The Merits

4                   While plaintiffs baldly assert numerous times that they “will prevail on the merits,” those 5                   assertions are not supported by the facts. Plaintiffs seem to rely heavily on the fact that the most 6                   recent iteration of their complaint withstood demurrer. However, in order to avoid demurrer, a 7                   party’s complaint must only plead sufficient allegations to state a claim--regardless of whether 8                   those allegations are true or supported by facts. Serrano v. Priest (1971) 5 Cal.3d 584, 591 9                   (court treats demurrer as admitting all material facts properly pleaded); Committee on Children’s 10                  Television, Inc. v. General Foods Corp. (1983) 35 Cal.3d 197, 213-214 (in determining a 11                  demurrer, the court does not consider the question of plaintiff’s ability to prove the allegations).
12                  In contrast, a party seeking an injunction must present evidence to establish that it is reasonably 13                  likely they will prevail on the merits and that they will be seriously harmed absent the injunction.
14                  The burden is on plaintiffs as the moving parties. Evid. Code §§500, 505.

15                  Plaintiffs’ entire case is premised upon their misinterpretation of a Bylaw first enacted in 16                  1988, which they claim empowered LAB members to elect some of the Pacifica Directors.
17                  Plaintiffs have presented almost no competent, admissible evidence to support their motion. The 18                  averments in the Gendelman Declaration repeatedly lack foundation and show no personal 19                  knowledge. In addition, her declaration is replete with impermissible legal conclusions and 20                  hearsay.<sup>4</sup> Peter Bramson’s Declaration, which is far more limited in scope, is similarly deficient.
21                  In contrast, as discussed above, defendants’ evidence shows that LAB members never had such 22                  power to elect directors; plaintiffs never exercised such power; and, until shortly before filing 23                  this lawsuit, plaintiffs never complained that they were not allowed to exercise such power.

26                  <sup>4</sup> As Dr. Berry describes, she was never advised that Jay Imani was nominated by an LAB 27                  nor was the Board Governance Committee ever supplied with paperwork to consider him.
28                  Berry Decl., ¶13. If plaintiffs comply with normal procedures, he would be considered in due course. However, this does not assure his election, since that decision is one for the Board of Directors.

b. Plaintiffs Have No Standing, Because They Are Not Members of Defendant Pacifica Foundation.

The actions of which plaintiffs complain are those that are inherent to the governance and management of Pacifica. Under the provisions of Pacifica's Articles of Incorporation and Bylaws and California law, those governing powers are vested solely in Pacifica's Board of Directors.<sup>5</sup>

Plaintiffs previously conceded that in order to both have standing and to prevail on their claims regarding corporate governance they must come within the ambit of California Corporations Code §5710, which requires that plaintiffs prove they are "members" of Pacifica. They rely on the definition of "member" found in Corporations Code §5056, which based upon a claimed right to vote for the election of a director. However, plaintiffs did not have that right. Further, "[a] person is not a member by virtue of ...[a]ny rights such person has as a delegate; or ... [a]ny rights such person has to designate or select a director or directors." Corp. Code §5056(d)(1) and (2).

Plaintiffs' only basis of alleged membership in Pacifica is their contention that LABs had the right to elect directors to Pacifica's Board of Directors, and, thus as representatives of those LABs, plaintiffs are in turn "members" of Pacifica. Plaintiffs misconstrue the meaning and language of the Bylaws allegedly in force prior to the 1997 and 1998 amendments. Yet as defendants' evidence unequivocally demonstrates, LABs never had that right.

As Mr. O'Dell stated in his declaration, the Bylaw relied on by plaintiffs merely required that, as a condition precedent to being elected by the Board of Directors ("In order to be elected") a potential director must receive the approval of over one-half of the station board ("The <sup>5</sup> Nonprofit public benefit corporations are not required to issue stock or to have members (i.e., persons other than directors entitled to vote). (Corp. Code §5310.) Each nonprofit public benefit corporation is required to have a Board of Directors and "the activities and affairs of a corporation shall be conducted and all corporate powers shall be exercised by or under the direction of the board." (Corp. Code §5210.) When a nonprofit public benefit corporation has no members, or the directors are the only members, any action of the corporation requires only approval of the Board of Directors. (Corp. Code §§5310(b)(c) and 5812(b)(3). That is currently, and in every iteration of the Bylaws, has been the case with Pacifica. (See Article 3, Section 1.A. of the Bylaws.) Gendelman Decl., Exhibit A.

1 nomination and vote of a majority of the station board”) which he may represent, except for “at 2 large” members who were not required to have any local support and could be elected by the 3 Board itself. O’Dell Decl., ¶7 The Bylaw language confirms that the only right of the LABs is 4 the right to nominate, and that the election itself was by the Board. Id. The only difference 5 between local and “at-large” nominees was that those nominated and supported by LABs 6 required only a majority vote of the Board for election while “at large” members required a two-7 thirds majority.

8 Even if the Court were to adopt plaintiffs’ interpretation that their designation of a 9 potential board member was absolute and had to be accepted by the Board of Directors, this does 10 still not make plaintiffs “members” as defined by Corp. Code §5056. Since even under 11 plaintiffs’ interpretation, LABs could not vote to elect either other directors outside their signal 12 area or at large directors. Station Board representatives, at best were able to designate a director.

13 Even if plaintiffs are deemed to have a right to “designate,” as opposed to “nominate” 14 directors, Corp. Code §5056(d)(2) expressly states that this right is not a basis for being deemed a 15 “member.” The logic is simple, those persons who have the right to engage in activities 16 traditionally undertaken by governing boards—such as the right to vote on the election of all 17 board members, make bylaws, or allow for merger or dissolution—are, in essence, members.
18 This status confers broad rights. But §5056(d)(2) clarifies that if the extent of one’s decision 19 making is limited to a right to designate or select some, but not all directors, the statute will not 20 as a matter of law confer the same status and will not deem that person to be a “member.”

21 In sum, no matter how plaintiffs interpret the language in the Bylaws they rely upon, as 22 establishing their status as “members,” all interpretations prove plaintiffs lack that status. Either 23 LABs could nominate a person for election by the Board of Directors, or they could nominate 24 and internally elect two Board members who they designate as a member of the Board of 25 Directors. In the first scenario they have no right to elect anyone and don’t come within the 26 ambit of §5056(a). In the second scenario, they are only designating two directors and are 27 expressly not members per §5056(d)(2). Under any interpretation, the LABs themselves are not 28 composed of “members.” It is well settled that a court may not remove directors based upon an

1 action by improper parties. American Center for Education, Inc. v. Cavnar (1978) 80 Cal.App.3d 2 476, 499.

3 More significantly, the evidence shows the LABs never wielded such power. Thus, the 4 fundamental underpinning of plaintiffs' motion fails. The amendment to the Bylaws they 5 complain of did not detrimentally affect any vested right to elect directors, or to direct or dictate 6 policy of Pacifica. Those rights were vested exclusively in Pacifica's Board of Directors.
7 Plaintiffs' allegation that they lost any legal rights in February 1999 or earlier is simply without 8 merit.<sup>6</sup>

9 3. The Harm To Pacifica From The Injunction Dwarfs Any Harm To 10 Plaintiffs From Denial.

11 Plaintiffs have not provided any evidence that they are at risk of harm if the injunction is 12 not issued. They merely argue that the presence of new Board members will cause them "to 13 suffer extreme harm." Saying it does not make it so. Plaintiffs fail to suggest, much less prove, 14 that the current Board can or will do anything to adversely affect any vested right. Instead they 15 assert that a "lesser showing" of harm is required, because they have shown they will prevail.
16 Plaintiffs' Memo, pp. 8:16-9:16. Plaintiffs have taken this argument one step further and made 17 no showing of harm.

18 Plaintiffs' argument that they will be harmed unless the current composition of the Board 19 is immediately changed by order of the Court is disingenuous and meritless. Plaintiffs filed this 20 suit in response to the adoption in 1997 and 1999 of Bylaws amendments plaintiffs did not like.
21 But those amendments were unanimously adopted by Boards which were composed primarily of 22 LAB nominees. In other words, plaintiffs are attacking the actions taken by their own 23 representatives serving on Boards that contained precisely the same ratio of LAB nominees to at-

24 <sup>6</sup> Plaintiffs' objections based on purportedly deficient notice of the proposed 1997 25 amendment similarly fall flat. An injunction may not issue to enjoin past conduct.
26 McManus v. KPAL Broadcasting Corp. (1960) 182 Cal.App.2d 558, 563 ("a completed 27 wrong cannot be corrected by a preliminary injunction, the purpose of which is to 28 preserve the status quo until after final judgment") Further, unless a director objects, inadequate notice is deemed waived. (Corp. Code §5211(3).) Plaintiffs present no facts that any director sitting in September of 1997 contends he or she did not get notice or objected to inadequate notice. Corp. Code §5211 provides notice must only be given to directors, and plaintiffs do not contend they were directors.

1 large nominees that plaintiffs contend must be restored by this injunction. It is not LAB 2 nominees plaintiffs seek, but like-minded nominees that will give them control of the Board.

3 Defendants have shown, through competent evidence, that were this Court to grant the 4 preliminary injunction, Pacifica would be at serious risk. First, if LAB board members are 5 placed on the Board this will almost certainly result in Pacifica's losing its funding from the 6 Corporation for Public Broadcasting ("CPB")--representing a significant portion of its budget, 7 resulting in a budget shortfall. In addition, as a licensee of the Federal Communications 8 Commission, Pacifica must comply with FCC regulations, and the injunctive relief sought by 9 plaintiffs would violate the FCC regulations and subject Pacifica not only to monetary 10 forfeitures, but also other sanctions. Crigler Decl., ¶12. This would be irreparable harm to 11 Pacifica. Further, Pacifica's contracts, actions and authority would be in question creating 12 numerous foreseeable and unforeseeable disputes. On balance, the scales of justice are 13 overwhelmingly tipped in favor of denying this injunction.

14 4. Mandatory Injunctions Are Rarely Granted.

15 Although they have tried to disguise the relief sought by phrasing it in prohibitory terms, 16 plaintiffs are, in fact seeking mandatory injunctive relief. They ask this Court to strip 10 17 directors of their office, seat unnamed and unknown persons as directors, transfer all corporate 18 authority to this new and undefined group, invalidate existing Bylaws, and effectively transfer 19 control of Pacific in violation of CPB and FCC regulations.

20 Mandatory injunctions such as the one requested by plaintiffs are "rarely granted" and 21 granting such an injunction "is not permitted except in extreme cases where the right thereto is 22 clearly established." Shoemaker v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 37 Cal.App.4th 618, 625 23 (citation and internal quote marks omitted). It does not matter how plaintiffs characterize the 24 requested injunctive relief. If it compels action, it is mandatory. Davenport v. Blue Cross of 25 California (1997) 52 Cal.App.4th 435, 446-447.

26 The performance of an affirmative act which changes the position of the parties by court 27 order is a mandatory injunction. A mandatory injunction is permitted only in "extreme cases 28 where the right thereto is clearly established and it appears that irreparable injury will flow from 1 its refusal.” Board of Supervisors v. McMahon (1990) 219 Cal.App.3d 286, 295-296; accord; 2 Teachers Ins. & Annuity Assn. v. Furlotti (1999) 70 Cal.App.4th 1487, 1493. This is not an 3 “extreme” case.

4                   5. The Cases Cited By Plaintiffs Are Of No Assistance.

5           Plaintiffs cite, without analysis, four cases that they argue are sufficiently similar to the 6 facts here to lend guidance to this Court in considering plaintiffs’ injunction. These cases are 7 Heckmann v. Ahmanson (1985) 168 Cal.App.3d 119; E&H Wholesale Inc. v. Glaser Bros. (1984)
8 158 Cal.App.3d 728; Signal Oil and Gas Company v. Ashland Oil (1958) 49 Cal.2d 764; and 9 Borg v. International Silver Co. 11 F.2d 147 (2d Cir. 1925). Plaintiffs’ Memo, p. 4:4-10. When 10 they are viewed with an analytical eye, however, none support plaintiffs’ requested injunctive 11 relief.

12           In Heckmann the appellate court upheld a preliminary injunction precluding a defendant, 13 which made a $60 million profit in a greenmail stock transaction, from disposing of the funds 14 pending trial, since the court believed the directors gained a personal benefit by agreeing to the 15 payment. This case is so attenuated from the facts before this Court, analysis is unnecessary.
16 The same can be said about E&H Wholesale the appellate court ordered a preliminary injunction 17 against a cigarette distributor’s sales since “there can be no doubt that defendant sold cigarettes 18 below cost . . .” in violation of B&P Code §17043. Again no factual or legal similarity exists 19 with the facts here.

20           Signal was a complex interstate dispute over the tax validity of a voting trust. The court 21 held that even when an order enjoining certain conduct is later found to be erroneous, the order is 22 not void. Briefly, the trial court order enjoined a corporation from holding a particular directors’ 23 meeting. In an appeal challenging the validity of the order, the Signal court found that since six 24 of fifteen directors obeyed the court’s order and did not attend the enjoined meeting, the actions 25 taken at that meeting should be reversed, because the obedient directors should not have lost their 26 right to debate the majority by reason of the lower court’s mistake. Signal, supra at 781-782.<sup>7</sup>

27 <sup>7</sup> If anything, the teaching of Signal is the court should be careful in enjoining corporate 28 activities since even orders later found to be in error must be obeyed.

1 Although Borg is an antique but otherwise unremarkable federal decision applying a 19th 2 century New Jersey law, it actually supports defendants here. The Second Circuit reviewed and 3 affirmed a district court's refusal to issue a preliminary injunction precluding a sale of stock in 4 the face of allegations that the sale was a disguised attempt by certain directors to increase their 5 control. The appellate court acknowledged that a decision such as selling shares at auction "was 6 certainly for the directors" and concluded that "we can hardly upset the directors' decision on 7 any suspicions which the evidence presents."<sup>8</sup>

8 B. Plaintiffs' Objections To The 1997 Amendments Affecting The Election Of 9 At-Large Members And Eliminating The Reference To Secret Ballots
10 Provide No Basis For Injunctive Relief.

11 The evidence shows that the 1997 amendments to the Bylaws were unequivocally within 12 the power of the Board, which adopted them by a unanimous vote. It is undisputed that since 13 1961, the Bylaws have stated "There shall be such number of directors as the Board of Directors 14 shall from time to time decide." Gendelman Decl., Exhibit A (Article Three, Section 1(c)).
15 Thus, this amendment was perfectly permissible. Even if plaintiffs were "members" within the 16 meaning of Corporations Code §5150, the amendments were not actions that affected their 17 claimed vested right to elect LAB representatives. Moreover, plaintiffs waived any right to 18 complain when Mr. Siegel, on behalf of his clients, endorsed the Board's actions. Significantly, 19 the 1997 Board consisted of a majority of directors who had been LAB nominees.

20 C. Mr. Acosta's Presence On The Board Is Not A Basis For Injunctive Relief.

21 Plaintiffs contend that two Board members--David Acosta and June Makela--have served 22 beyond the expiration of their terms and should be removed by this Court. However, as 23 defendants' witnesses testified, the Board has had a longstanding policy that when a Board 24 member is elected to a Board Officer term, his or her tenure as a Board member is extended to be 25 coextensive with that term of office. Millspaugh Decl., ¶5; O'Dell Decl., ¶11; Berry Decl., ¶10.
26 In Ms. Makela's case, she left the Board when her term as Treasurer and Executive Committee

27 <sup>8</sup> In short, plaintiffs citations to authority follow the dubious modern aggressive trend to 28 piece together language out of context from cases to create a mosaic whose motif, while appearing logical, contains no true structure.

1 member expired, so as to her, the question is moot. Similarly, Mr. Acosta was elected Vice Chair 2 and that term continues until June 2001. Acosta Decl., ¶2; Millspaugh Decl., ¶5.

3 In any event, the Board could, if it chose, eliminate all term limitations, to which 4 plaintiffs again would have no standing to object. Since the Board could take such action or 5 make an exception for Mr. Acosta, it clearly has the power to do so by procedural policies.
6 Finally, a director holds office until the later of the expiration of their term and until a successor 7 has been elected and qualified. Ex. I; Cal. Corp. Code §301(B). Since no successor has been 8 elected or qualified, Mr. Acosta's status is wholly consistent with California law.<sup>9</sup>

9 D. The Injunctive Relief Requested By Plaintiffs Is Preempted.

10 The entire field of regulating format and determining the appropriateness of conduct by 11 FCC licensees lies with the FCC. See, e.g. Lamb v. Sutton (M.D. Tenn. 1958) 164 F.Supp. 928, 12 934 ("Congress under the Federal Communications Act of 1934, as amended, completely 13 occupied and preempted the field of interstate communications in radio and television"); see also, 14 Schroeder v. Municipal Court (1977) 73 Cal.App.3d 841, 846. That regulatory scheme gives 15 objectors an opportunity to voice their grievances and complaints with stations operated under an 16 FCC license in the license renewal hearings. 47 U.S.C. §309(d)(1); See, e.g., Brandywine-Main 17 Line Radio, Inc. v. F.C.C. (D.C. Cir. 1972) 473 F.2d 16, 59.

18 Furthermore, plaintiffs' efforts to remove directors from the Board raise issues of a 19 court's authority to order "the removal from office of certain individual directors." This is 20 impermissible, because any substantial change in control of the licensee requires approval of the 21 transfer of the FCC license. 47 U.S.C. §310(d), 309(b), (c); see, Storer Communications, Inc. v.
22 F.C.C. (D.C. Cir. 1985) 763 F.2d 436, 438. Crigler Decl., ¶12.

23 E. Any Preliminary Injunction Would Require A Large Bond.

24 CCP §529 requires the Court, on granting injunction, to order an undertaking adequate to 25 pay any damages which may be sustained by reason of the injunction. Casitas Inv. Co. v.

26 _____
27 <sup>9</sup> Plaintiffs' argument also fails, since even if this were a violation of corporate policy, it 28 is not within the scope of Corporations Code §5150 that they may complain about.

1 Charles L. Harney, Inc. (1962) 203 Cal.App.2d 811, 815 (issuance of an injunction must be 2 supported by a bond or undertaking). If the injunction is issued, Pacifica faces potential FCC 3 sanctions and the loss of CPB funding. There is little doubt the requested injunctive relief would 4 cause this loss. Crigler Decl., ¶¶4, 12. The absolute floor for any bond should be one million 5 dollars. Even if the Court is convinced plaintiffs have an overwhelmingly strong case, it still 6 must require an undertaking in an amount to fully compensate defendants, if plaintiffs lose no 7 matter how improbable. Abba Rubber Co. v. Seaquist (1991) 235 Cal.App. 3d 1, 16.

8 IV. CONCLUSION

9 Plaintiffs have failed to show that they are likely to succeed on the merits or that they will 10 be harmed if the injunction does not issue. Any hesitation the Court may harbor in rejecting out 11 of hand plaintiffs' Petition for Preliminary Injunction should be removed when it considers the 12 potential harm to Pacifica were this relief to be granted. The current Board of Directors would 13 be stripped of its authority. The control of Pacifica, a complex and vital National Radio Network 14 would be changed in violation of FCC regulations. CPB funding would be in jeopardy. Every 15 contract and agreement entered into by this Board would be subject to question potentially 16 resulting in disputes and litigation. Such potential harm far outweighs any conclusory allegation 17 of harm to LAB members, who have never yet tasted the power they evidently crave. The 18 motion should be denied.
